Activity	Performance Levels
The teacher sits with the student, one-on-one, and reads an engaging early level text, asking the student to help with the reading. Say, "I am going to read you this story and I want you to help me. It is called_____." 1. Top to bottom: Open the book to page 1. Say, "Show me the top of the page. Show me the bottom." Say, "Show me where I should start reading." 2. Left to right: Point to the first word, read it. Say, "I am going to point to the words as I read. Show me how my finger should move on the page as I read." 3. Page to page: Point to the last word on the page. Say, "Where do I read next?" Materials: An early level text with distinct layout of print and illustrations, good spacing of words and multiple lines of text.	Not Yet Demonstrated	Even with prompting and support, the student does not track words from left to right, top to bottom nor page to page.
	Meets the Standard	With prompting and support, the student tracks words appropriately in all three ways (left to right, top to bottom, page to page).

Developing Social Emotional Competence in Pre-K Students

Cassa Andrews
Positive Behavioral Interventions and Supports Program Manager

Framing the Issue

BRIGHT from the START
Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning

- 10-30% of preschoolers are not behaviorally and emotionally ready to be successful in school.
- Critical social emotional skills are developed during the birth to third grade period.
- Early problem behavior is predictive of future challenges.
- Early educators feel unprepared to address challenging behavior.
- Increased suspension and expulsion
  - 14,292 Georgia children aged 5 – 8 received out of school suspensions in 2014.
  - Preschool children are 3 times more likely to be expelled than K-12 students.
- Children who aren't in school can't benefit from positive early learning experiences.

Federal Focus on Social Emotional Development

Bright from the Start
Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning

- US ED and HHS joint policy statement on preschool expulsion https://www.acf.hhs.gov/sites/default/files/ecd/expulsion_suspension_final.pdf
- Child Care Development Block Grant (CCDBG) reauthorization:
  - States should have policies regarding social emotional behavioral health of young children.
  - State professional development system should include training and technical assistance to providers in:
    - Promoting social emotional development.
    - Implementing evidence-based frameworks such as the Pyramid Model of Positive Behavior Interventions and Supports (PBIS).

Georgia's Response – Department of Education

BRIGHT from the START
Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning

- Georgia Department of Education began implementation of the PBIS framework in 2007 in response to high suspension and expulsion rates and disproportionality. Since that time
  - more than 650 schools have been trained
  - more than 20% of school systems are implementing PBIS.

- School Climate Star Ratings began in the 2014-2015 school year.

Georgia's Response - DECAL

BRIGHT from the START
Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning

- Supporting the understanding of child development and social emotional skills:
  - Resources:
    - GELDS
    - Online modules- Wednesday Webinars
  - Professional Development:
    - Face to face trainings
    - Onsite technical assistance and coaching by regional Inclusion Specialists

Georgia's Response - DECAL

BRIGHT from the START
Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning

- DECAL resources and staff were reallocated to target specific, evidence based practices to support social emotional competence skills
  - Research-based model framework identified.
    - Positive Behavior Interventions and Supports (PBIS)- Pyramid Model for Social Emotional Competence for Young Children
  - PBIS Manager hired.
  - Inclusion Specialists' work reframed to include supporting PBIS work.

Sharing Ideas
Ask the children to find a partner and take turns telling each other about a family outing or favorite activity. You may pose a question to get the conversation started or model a back-and-forth conversation with your assistant teacher. SED2.4a

Show and Tell
Create a polka-dot bag for the children to use for show and tell. Invite the children to bring in a special toy from home and place it in the bag. Sing this song:

What's in the polka-dot bag,
nobody knows but me.
What's in the polka-dot bag,
nobody knows but me.
Paul can't tell you,
you will have to guess.
He (she) will give you three clues,
you will do the rest.

Help the child come up with three things that describe his/her object. "It's gray. It has a long tail and it squeaks. Yes, it's a mouse." SED2.4a

How Are You Feeling?
Use photos of children doing things such as playing alone, crying or happily engaging with others. Ask, "Why do you think this boy is sad?" or "What do you think just happened to make the girl smile so big?" These type of questions will require children to reason and prompt their thinking. SED2.4b

No Worries
Read Wemberly Worried by Kevin Henkes. Invite the children to share a time when they were worried about something. The children can be encouraged to draw pictures of a time they were worried during center time. SED2.4b

The Rainbow Pants
Read the book The Rainbow Pants by Kelly Brooks-Bay. After you have read the book, ask children to talk about different emotions. What color pants do they think represent different emotions – such as wearing red pants on a day you feel angry or yellow pants when you feel happy? You can chart children's responses matching the different emotions to pants colors. SED2.4b

Musical Feelings
Place cards on the floor that have emotion faces on them. Play music. The children march around on the cards, and when the music stops they act out the emotion shown on the card they are standing on. SED2.4b

★ BRIGHT IDEA
For the children who may have difficulty marching to the music, encourage them to move around the cards in a way that is comfortable for them, such as walking or rolling in their wheelchair.

Feelings
Begin large group with this poem:

When angry feelings start to mount,
That's when I take some time to count:
One ... Two ... Three ... Four ... Five.
Counting helps me settle down,
Counting helps to fade my frown:
Six ... Seven ... Eight ... Nine ... Ten.

Follow up by reading The Feelings Book by Todd Parr, and give the children props and puppets to talk about feelings. SED2.4c

Frog and Toad
Read Frog and Toad: The Lost Button by Arnold Lobel. Give the children animal headbands to help retell the story. Emphasize how Frog and Toad feel when they can't find their buttons. SED2.4c

How Do You Feel Today?
Play a "How Do You Feel?" game. Sing this song to the tune of "The Farmer in the Dell":

How do you feel today,
How do you feel today.
Tell us how you feel today
How do you feel today.

Then describe a situation, such as, "A friend fell on the playground. How does he feel?" or "Jada found the book she thought was lost. How does she feel?" Have the children describe what they could say to them. You might also use the song as a greeting, having each child say how he/she feels. SED2.4d
