

We Can Overview

We Can (2nd Edition) is an evidenced-based early learning solution that supports teachers of all experience levels in addressing key foundational skills in the Common Core State Standards and other state standards for kindergarten. The robust, multidisciplinary curriculum provides a clear roadmap for early childhood success that is backed by more than a decade of proven sustainable student gains in the classroom. Also aligned to the Head Start learning outcomes framework, We Can delivers instruction and practice to support learning in all early childhood domains.

The program integrates assessment with instruction and offers teachers multiple opportunities to observe children, identify their capabilities and needs, and monitor their progress. We Can is built to include teacher-led instruction and guided practice with opportunities for productive, purposeful play to promote the development of literacy, language, numeracy, and general cognitive, social, and emotional functioning. We Can's classroom management component is a research- and evidence-based system that allows teachers to manage the environment while children learn to manage themselves within the structure provided by routines. This component provides small and whole group instruction and Learning Centers for positively and proactively creating order in the classroom environment so that teachers can focus on instruction and set expectations for students.

Serving pre-k students with age-appropriate, cross-curricular content and academic concepts, We Can prepares children for the academic rigor in kindergarten and beyond. The teacher-friendly instruction is appropriate for use by educators of varying experience and education levels. This early learning curriculum focuses on academic literacy and numeracy, while also offering a comprehensive pre-writing kit.

We Can provides instruction and practice to support children’s growth and learning in all early childhood domains: oral language and vocabulary development; literacy; phonological awareness; fine arts; physical development, health, and safety; mathematics; technology; science; social studies; and social and emotional learning.

We Can is appropriate for all pre-k students—general education, special education, English language learners and high achievers. It includes modifications for 3- and 4-year olds, and accommodates full- and half-day schedules. The curriculum also offers young children an introduction to technology through the web-based program titled The Learning Zoo.
