DECAL and Voices for Georgia's Children host
Statewide Celebration of Early Learning

Georgia Pre-K Week is October 7-11, 2019

First Lady Marty Kemp and Commissioner Amy M. Jacobs to visit Children's Development Academy in Roswell

ATLANTA, Ga., (October 4, 2019) – Bright from the Start: Georgia Department of Early Care and Learning and Voices for Georgia's Children will join leaders from around the state to show support for early childhood education and visit Pre-Kindergarten classrooms as part of this year's Georgia Pre-K Week, October 7-11, 2019. Georgia's First Lady Marty Kemp and Commissioner Amy M. Jacobs will help celebrate the week on Thursday, October 10, 2019, at 10:00 AM with a visit to the Georgia's Pre-K Program classes at the Children's Development Academy (CDA), located at 89 Grove Way in Roswell.

Now in its ninth year, Pre-K Week is a celebration of Georgia's nationally recognized Pre-K program and other quality early learning centers. During the week, hundreds of state, business, and community leaders visit Pre-K centers to see early learning in action.

DECAL and Voices will join business and state leaders in reading children's books to Pre-K classes and experience first-hand the joy and enthusiasm of young learners.

“Quality early learning gives Georgia’s youngest learners the foundational skills they build upon throughout their education,” said Commissioner Amy M. Jacobs. “Research shows children who attend quality early learning programs are more likely to graduate from high school and enroll in college, making quality early learning essential to our children, families, and state workforce.”

“The support of public and private organizations sends a powerful statement to the community about the value of quality early learning,” said Dr. Erica Fener Sitkoff, Executive Director of Voices for Georgia’s Children. “We are grateful to have their support in raising awareness of Georgia’s Pre-K Program.”

Pre-K Week is organized each year by Voices for Georgia’s Children, a policy and advocacy non-profit organization, with support from DECAL.
